

ABSTRACT

A network terminal apparatus of the present invention includes an overload condition detecting unit detecting communication overload condition and an overload condition completion detecting unit detecting recovery from an overload condition, invalidates data received by LAN chip when an overload condition is detected, and releases said invalidation when recovery from an overload condition is detected.